

1. We can draw a heatmap to show the relationship between Donating and Receiving countries. The recipient countries will be represented on y axis and donor countries will be represented on x axis. We can also sort the countries and then arrange on the x and y axis accordingly. The recipient countries can be arranged bottom to top descending order and donor countries can be arranged left to right descending order. The darker the red color the more the country has donated and lighter the red color the less the country has donated.

2. To answer Question 2, a symbol map can be drawn to answer the relationship of donating and receiving purposes between countries. Each symbol is a circle which is divided into five parts. Each part of a circle holds one color per purpose
